KUSHNER STARTS MIDDLE EAST PEACE EFFORT

President Donald Trump's son-in-law and senior adviser, Jared Kushner, held talks with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu in Jerusalem, beginning a new U.S. effort to revive long-fractured Middle East peace efforts. Kushner, a 36-year-old real estate developer with little experience of international diplomacy or political negotiation, arrived in Israel on Wednesday morning and will spend barely 20 hours on the ground — he leaves shortly after midnight. Video showed him giving Netanyahu, a friend of Kushner's father, a handshake and a hug as they prepared to sit down with the Israeli ambassador to Washington, the U.S. ambassador to Israel and other senior officials for preliminary discussions.

OFFICER STABBED AT MICHIGAN AIRPORT

Bishop International Airport in Flint, Michigan, was evacuated after a police officer was stabbed in the neck in what a U.S. government official familiar with the situation said was being investigated as a possible act of terrorism. All passengers were safe, the airport said in a brief statement on its Facebook page. The officer who was stabbed is Lieutenant Jeff Neville of the Bishop International Airport Department of Public Safety, Michigan State Police spokeswoman Lori Dougovito said. Neville underwent surgery after the attack and is stable. Asked if the stabbing was under investigation as possible terrorism, the government official, who asked not be named, said yes. The officer was stabbed inside the airport's main terminal, Michigan State Police spokesman David Kaiser said.

NYC SETTLES WITH FORMER TENNIS STAR

New York City agreed on Wednesday to create a new position with a watchdog agency to hear complaints against the police as part of a settlement with retired tennis star James Blake, who was roughed up by a plainclothes officer in 2015. Instead of a monetary award, the settlement creates a fellowship in Blake's name with the Civilian Complaint Review Board to help people with complaints against the police. The fellowship will augment the existing procedure for complaints. "It has been my intention since Day 1 to turn a negative situation into a positive and I think this fellowship accomplishes that goal," Blake, 37, said in a joint statement with the city announcing the agreement.

HEALTHCARE TO CUT BACK MEDICAID EXPANSION

A healthcare bill being released by U.S. Senate Republicans on Thursday is expected to roll back the Obamacare expansion of the Medicaid healthcare program for the poor and reshape subsidies to low-income people buying private insurance. Those subsidies are expected to be linked to income, a "major improvement" from a healthcare overhaul bill passed in the House of Representatives that tied them solely to age, Republican Sen. Susan Collins said. The Washington Post reported that the bill would also repeal most of the taxes that pay for the Affordable Care Act, popularly known as Obamacare, give states wider latitude to opt out of its regulations and eliminate federal funding for Planned Parenthood, a healthcare provider that offers abortion services. The healthcare bill will be released to the Republican Senate Conference on Thursday morning and posted online, senators said.

With far-right movement rising, one New Yorker hopes education can change the tide

"They saw [Trump] say he was going to build a wall and register Muslims, and it was lit like a match on gasoline."

NIKKI M. MASCALI
@MetroNewYork
nikki.mascali@metro.us

While President Donald Trump has inspired a resistance of marches, art exhibits and plays, he has also stirred another movement that isn't grabbing as many headlines.

"I went to an Ethiopian restaurant in Bushwick on Monday and had to pull a neo-Nazi sticker off the wall," Spencer Sunshine told Metro. "I never would have seen one two years ago."

Because such propaganda and its believers have become more visible in the city — and country — Sunshine, who has researched and reported on the far-right movement since 2005 and is an assistant fellow at social justice think tank Political Research Associates (PRA), felt it was time to "have a public discussion about this."

Sunshine will host "The Far Right Today in the U.S. and New York City" at Verso Books in Brooklyn on Wednesday, June 28. During the PRA-sponsored talk, he will shed light on the different groups within the far-right movement and break down their beliefs.

Metro: How important is it to hold this event now?
Spencer Sunshine:

There's a real uptick in far-right presence on the streets of New York right now. I've lived in New York for 17 years, and I've never seen so many people at a far-right demonstration as I saw at the anti-Sharia rally on

Spencer Sunshine has been researching and reporting on the far-right movement since 2005. He will host "The Far Right Today in the U.S. and New York City" on June 28. PROVIDED June 10.

What do you hope is the takeaway?

I want people who are concerned about the rise of the far-right to not just know that it's here, but to look at it in color and notice these different kind of groups have names, organizers and pay attention to how they're organizing and what kind of things they're talking about because that's a necessary step to taking action against them.

Can you pinpoint when this recent far-right movement came to the surface?

It all happened with [Trump's] campaign, 100 percent, especially the racist part of it. They saw him say he was going to build a wall and register Muslims, and it was lit like a match on gasoline.

Do you think the country can step back from this?

That's a really vexing question. Trump has broken this post-civil rights movement consensus that you cannot, in polite conversation, say these bigoted things. Will that genie go back in the bottle? I have a feeling that's going to be hard to do.

Lawyers: Chelsea bombing suspect denies terrorism ties

Ahmad Khan Rahimi was not charged with being a terrorist or having ties to a terror organization, his legal team argued.

NIKKI M. MASCALI
@MetroNewYork
nikki.mascali@metro.us

Accused Chelsea bomber Ahmad Khan Rahimi was not acting on behalf of ties to any terrorist organization when he set detonated bombs in New York and New Jersey last September, his legal team said Tuesday.

Rahimi, his lawyers said, has not been charged with being a terrorist or having a connection to any terror organization, according to the New York Post.

Additionally, his lawyers argued against the inclusion of a terrorism expert when the trial for Rahimi, a 29-year-old Afghan-born U.S. citizen, begins this fall, The Associated Press reported.

Having such an expert would "add on to the indictment this gloss of terrorism," said Sabrina Shroff, Rahimi's assistant federal defender. "They want to inject that into a case that is already volatile enough."

Manhattan federal Judge Richard Berman is expected to rule on the terrorism issue on Thursday.

Rahimi is accused of detonating a pipe bomb in Seaside Park, New Jersey, on Sept. 17, 2016. No one was injured in the explosion, which went off at a 5K run, and two other undetonated pipe bombs were later found nearby.

Later that day, a shrapnel-filled pressure cooker bomb exploded in the Chelsea neighborhood of Manhattan, injuring 31 people. A second pressure cooker device was found under a mailbox about four blocks from the blast site later that night, which was also filled with shrapnel.

On Sept. 18, two pipe

NYC interns at the 10 largest banks make more than many professionals. GETTY IMAGES

Quit your job! Summer financial interns in NYC make this much money per month

We knew we should have gone into banking.

PERRI ORMONT
BLUMBERG
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

Depressing, err, fun fact: Wall Street interns make more money than the average 18- to 24-year-old professional. Or older if you're in certain industries.

And with summer season now in full, sweaty swing, you may have noticed a fair share of summer interns invading your local watering hole, playing Frisbee on your favorite stretch of park lawn or cutting you in line to grab a cab. They've even cropped up in the already massively long lines at Trader Joe's. And heck, maybe you're even picking up the bill for one or two on a Tinder date. Spoiler: They can more than afford to pay for their own craft cocktail.

It turns out the ones who work in banking are rolling in the cash. Looking at the 10 largest commercial banks in the U.S., CNBC collected Glassdoor salary data for roles with the titles of either "summer financial analyst" or "summer analyst" in New York City to see how the notoriously high-paying warm-weather gigs stacked up. Using that info, they calculated how much these interns can expect to make this summer. (Data that was listed as an hourly or yearly wage was converted to a monthly salary for the purpose of this analysis.)

Drumroll, please, for the going intern rate at these big-box financial houses:

10 U.S. Bancorp
Average monthly salary: $3,466

9 TD Bank
Average monthly salary: $3,553

8 PNC
Average monthly salary: $3,813

7 Wells Fargo
Average monthly salary: $4,458

6 Bank of America
Average monthly salary: $4,457

5 HSBC
Average monthly salary: $4,947

4 BNY Mellon
Average monthly salary: $5,125

3 JP Morgan Chase
Average monthly salary: $5,180

2 Capital One
Average monthly salary: $5,206

1 Citi
Average monthly salary: $5,643

Now, our only other remaining question is this: Will they consider hiring 28-year-old interns? We swear we're asking for a friend.

'Me the People' brings satire of Trump's America to the stage

The musical revue is "about creating a safe space to laugh for the people who are really horrified," writer Nancy Holson said.

NIKKI M. MASCALI
@MetroNewYork
nikki.mascali@metro.us

The last time Nancy Holson, Jay Falzone and Jim Russek joined forces to bring the presidency of a sitting commander-in-chief to the stage, it was George W. Bush.

"We didn't realize how good we had it back then," Holson said.

Fast forward 11 years, and Holson, riding the swell of the opposition surrounding President Donald Trump's election, needed to resist the way she knew best: through satire and song.

The trio hopes to "tap into the community of people who feel as we do, who are horrified by these events and feel the need to make change, to give them a release and build a sense of community," as Holson put it, with "Me the People: The Trump America Musical."

The show kicks off June 22 at The Triad on the Upper West Side and features a book and lyrics by Holson, with Falzone choreographing and directing and Russek producing.

Metro: Which character was the most fun to write?

Nancy Holson: It won't necessarily be that we're doing an impression of a person, though Jared and Ivanka, we had a whole lot of fun with them. We've personified Mar-a-Lago, the Supreme Court, taken Twitter and turned it into a character. The Founding Fathers rewrite the Constitution according to Trump's rules. We've used a little bit of absurdity here — we don't have Donald Trump in the show.

How long was "Me the People" in the works?

It came about after the election. After the cloud began to clear a day or two later, I realized I needed to do this.

How important is it to remember laughter at a time many are horrified?

It's very important because life is about balance. In the middle of all this horror, I just had my first grandchild. It really is a reminder that life goes on. On the other hand, when something this bleak and dangerous happens, we have to channel everything, and laughter is a tool.

With something new happening seemingly hourly with Trump, will the show adapt?

That was certainly something we toyed with, but I felt the more important thing was to address principals. We're really talking about fundamental, moral concepts, so those would be the tent poles. References will come and go, but there will be topical stuff, and it'll feel fresh.

What would you say to get a Trump supporter to attend?

"Chicago" is playing down the road. This is not about changing the mind of Trump voters. It's about creating a safe space to laugh for the people who are really horrified.

"We had a whole lot of fun" writing for Ivanka Trump and husband Jared Kushner, "Me the People" writer Nancy Holson said. STEPHEN SCHWARTZ NY City - If you are reading this, I know a few things about you.

First, you suffer with knee arthritis pain.

And that pain is having a dramatic affect on your life.

The pain not only stops you from doing simply things like getting up and walking without discomfort...

It makes your entire life miserable.

Life's just not worth living this way

I also know you have tried many things.

Pain pills, steroid shots, exercise and probably some "wonder cures" you saw advertised on tv or the internet.

None of it worked

And every time you got your hopes up just a little, you were just massively disappointed. Again.

Because of this, you are skeptical. Very skeptical. And you deserve to be.

Because nothing is more depressing than living in constant pain and...

Not getting any REAL answers

You might even be faced with getting knee replacement surgery.

This is a scary thought. Am I right?

No one wants knee replacement surgery. And, even though it has advanced considerably in recent years, it is still a MAJOR procedure with a lot of painful rehabilitation... and risk.

And, although some people need knee replacement surgery... many who think they do... do not.

I think we can agree... it should always be the last resort. And it should not be done if there is a better option.

Now that we know each other a little better, let me ask you this...

After all you have been through, are you still open-minded enough to try a new and revolutionary knee arthritis treatment...

If it could help you... and...

And probably best of all...

what if this treatment that used to be WAY out of your price range is now affordable by just about anyone.

Sounds too good to be true?

It sure does.

But it's true, and in just a moment I'm going to prove it to you.

And with that proof, you will discover new hope for your knee arthritis pain that might change your life... in as little as 30 days.

I don't know about you... but that's a lot of dough for average folks!

Now for something you do not know...

Thankfully, medical technology changes fast. And with these advances, doctors should and can charge much less for certain procedures...

IF THEY REALLY WANT TO HELP PEOPLE.

That's why a medical clinic located in New York, NYC Pain MD, has been absolutely

Well, what if there actually was a real medical treatment... that could help YOU.

Even better... what if there was a super advanced treatment the rich and famous (and professional athletes) have already been using... that actually has the potential to not only eliminate your knee arthritis pain... but possible heal it.

Here's what this is all about:

I'm sure you've heard about stem cell therapy and the reports of how wonderful it is.

Everyone has.

I'm sure you also know that rich celebrities and athletes have the money and connection to get treatments the "average Joe" can't.

It's not fair... but it's just the way it is.

The director of the MTA called for a "top to bottom" review of the entire system.

SAM NEWHOUSE
@snewhouse
sam.newhouse@metro.us

Riding the MTA has become an almost frightening game of chance lately with miserable passengers expecting long delays and praying they won't be the next victims trapped on a train.

The acting executive director of the MTA, Ronnie Hakim, called Wednesday for a "top to bottom" review of the entire situation to hopefully find some solutions that can restore sanity to strap-hangers' lives.

"We understand that everybody is frustrated with this," Hakim said at the MTA board meeting where she called for the review, NBC4 reported.

The MTA has recently taken steps to counter an uptick in delays. COURTESY OF MTA

Things are getting rougher, with the MTA reporting as of May that an average of seven serious accidents a month were causing some 50 serious delays each month.

The MTA announced last month a six-point initiative to resolve service problems.

Half of the MTA's $30 billion capital budget is allotted for the century-old New York City Transit system. The plan says 750 new train cars will arrive starting this fall through September 2018.

But it remains unclear how much time or money it could take to fix the MTA's 837 miles of track and 13,000 train signals.

Mayor Bill de Blasio has threatened that he'd rather have the city run the MTA if they couldn't resolve the issues.

Also related to NYC transit, Gov. Andrew Cuomo and Amtrak have been verbally sparring over who can best handle the upcoming "summer of hell" at Penn Station as service is severely restricted to allow for major repairs.

On Tuesday, signal problems at Herald Square caused massive delays. Two fed-up passengers got off a northbound F train and walked on the tracks to catch a train. Another group of passengers was trapped in a LIRR train for over an hour. And earlier this month, riders were trapped in an overheated, unlit F train for an hour, resulting in horror movie-quality imagery of trapped commuters trying to pry the doors open.

Service is so bad that the G train, formerly a ghost train, is now the most reliably punctual train in the city, along with the L.

South Korea could call upon their neighbors, North Korea, to help co-host the 2018 Winter Olympics. GETTY IMAGES

North Korea might co-host 2018 Winter Olympic Games

South Korea could ask its neighbors for help in hosting the famed sporting event.

JOE PANTORNO
@joepantorno
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

A report by the Washington Post on Wednesday revealed that South Korea, host of the 2018 Winter Olympic Games, could ask its controversial neighbors North Korea to help co-host the famed sporting event come February.

The Games are to be held in PyeongChang, which is just 40 miles from the demilitarized zone separating North from South.

Within North Korea's capital of Pyongyang is a 4,000-foot mountain that contains 70 miles of slopes called Masikryong. The complex would provide a world-class venue for outdoor events like skiing and snowboarding.

South Korean sports minister Do Jong-hwan told the Washington

Post that this offer could "thaw lingering tensions," between the two countries and make the Games a "peace Olympics," as North Korean athletes would be allowed to safely pass through the demilitarized zone.

Among Jong-hwan's ideas are a women's hockey team comprised of both North and South Koreans to compete in the Games.

It obviously remains to be seen how other countries would react to sending their athletes to North Korea. The United States' relationship with the country continues to worsen due to numerous missile tests and after Otto Warmbier, a college student was detained and imprisoned for 17 months by North Korea. He was released last week and returned to the US in a coma before dying Monday.

TECHNOLOGY

Twitter to let streaming video stars collect money from fans
Twitter Inc (TWTR.N) plans on Wednesday to launch a system for people to earn money by streaming live on its Periscope service, a first for Twitter and a way for the company to try to compete with YouTube and others in the search for internet talent.

People watching Periscope will be able to send performers and broadcasters they like a gratuity using a variety of heart shapes that are, in effect, a virtual currency they can purchase, the company said.

Broadcasters who receive the equivalent of about $175 in "super hearts" will be designated "super broadcasters" and be able to cash out the money as earnings, the company said.

At first only broadcasters in the United States will be eligible, but Periscope plans to expand to other countries soon, it said.

"The spirit and the goal is for all broadcasters to be able to do this," said Sara Haider, Periscope's director of engineering.

Kim & Kanye hire surrogate for baby No. 3

Kim Kardashian and Kanye West have officially decided to bless and/or terrorize us with a third child — via surrogate.

Even after two high-risk pregnancies, Kardashian, 36, has made it clear that she wants another child, mostly in the confessional part of “Keeping Up With the Kardashians.”

“I really tried everything, and I really want this, and it’s just not going to happen to me,” she said.

“I always knew surrogacy was an option,” she continued. “Now it’s my reality.”

Kardashian and West are already parents of two imaginatively named children: North, 4, and Saint, 1.

Well, the most famous Kardashian certainly knows that family is her passion. Good on her for not only making her fertility problems public, but being dedicated in face of adversity.

But what insane name will they choose?

At least, that’s what it sounds like. In a wide ranging interview with New Beauty, the “Friends” actress opens up about her plastic surgery, and also? Where her obsession with appearance comes from.

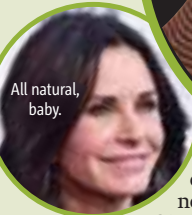

“My mother’s a gorgeous woman,” she says. “She didn’t have a lot of other passions. My father ... talked about looks a lot. He felt that was an important topic in our family — what people looked like, and who didn’t look so good. That’s not a great thing to reveal about your childhood.”

Then, the 53-year-old said she basically didn’t realize that she was doing too much, plastic surgerywise, until a friend told her. Literally her friend told her, “Whoa! No more.” Everyone needs that friend.

But now she is all natural, baby! I mean, as natural as she can get. “I’ve had all my fillers dissolved. I’m as natural as I can be. I feel better because I look like myself,” she says. “Everything’s going to drop. I was trying to make it not drop, but that made me look fake.” True!

All natural, baby.

Jenny Slate + Jon Hamm = romance?

The paparazzi recently caught Jenny Slate and Jon Hamm going to the movies together. And if two people are attractive and live in Hollywood, their relationship can’t be platonic.

Slate, 35, and Hamm, 46, have been “friends” for “awhile.” They’re also both pretty funny, single and have faces with all the requisite parts. Must be meant to be!

Hamm most recently confessed to The Guardian that

The celebrity couple you never knew you needed.

being handsome is hard work. “I bring more to the table than what I represent physically,” he told the site. “And it’s a daily struggle to prove that.”

Slate, who appears to be the most delightful human, most recently dated Chris Evans. They broke up just because, like, they were different.

Anyway, Slate and Hamm could be just friends. But if they are more than just friends, well. They have my dang approval — which I’m confident they’ve been waiting for.

Sandra Bullock’s ex is still a cheater

Jesse James is the worst.

Jesse James — most famous for marrying then cheating on Sandra Bullock — has found himself in the middle of another marital scandal. The 48-year-old has been married to heiress and American drag racer Alexis DeJoria since 2013. But that didn’t stop James from exchanging, um, “racy” messages over social media with hairstylist Myla Harris for three months.

Harris, 33, went to InTouch to spill the details.

“We messaged a few days on Instagram before he had me switch to Snapchat so our [later] conversations and pictures couldn’t be saved.” Also, James had to first confirm that Harris wasn’t “some huge fatty,” because he’s very charming. Their conversations apparently often centered around Jesse’s fantasies of oral sex with her. Yiiiiikes.

Harris sent James nudes, basically, and their relationship was never consummated. So, I mean, that’s a huge step, as far as James is concerned.

Kirsten Dunst is cool objectifying Colin Farrell

The actress talks about "The Beguiled" and having fun with the restrictive past.

MATT PRIGGE
@mattprigge
matt.prigge@metro.us

Want to feel old? Sofia Coppola's first feature, "The Virgin Suicides," was filmed almost 20 years ago. Even Kirsten Dunst is horrified by this. At the time, the actress was 16. (She's 35 now.) Back then, she was still considered one of the most esteemed child actresses of her time, beloved for "Interview with the Vampire," "Little Women" and "Jumanji." "The Virgin Suicides," though, was the first time we saw her as a young woman.

"I had to do a lot of things in that film I wasn't necessarily comfortable doing," Dunst recalls. "But Sofia protected me. I had this montage of making out with different boys. And I wouldn't make out with them. She told me to just move my head back and forth into their neck. It would look like we were making out."

Nice fake-out. "I was happy my transition from being thought of more as a child actress into an adult was in the hands of Sofia," Dunst adds.

Since then, the award-winning actress has worked with Coppola three more times; the two are a female version of Scorsese and De Niro. Dunst played doomed royalty in "Marie Antoinette" and had a brief part, as herself, in "The Bling Ring." She's back in Coppola's award-winning new film "The Beguiled," a loose remake of the 1971 classic — arguably the weirdest movie on Clint Eastwood's résumé.

Dunst plays Edwina, second in command at a remote Mississippi all-girls' school (run by Nicole Kidman, and whose students include Elle Fanning). It's three years into the Civil War, and the girls are shocked — and a little stoked — to rescue a wounded Union soldier, played by Colin Farrell. As in the original, he proceeds to worm his way into their good graces, then goes a bit further (nudge, nudge). But since this is a film directed by a woman, you get a movie where it's the man, not the women, who's the object of desire.

"It's rare to see Colin Farrell being the only one bare-chested in a movie," Dunst says, chuckling. "He was a good sport about being

Dunst's weirdo idea for a crazy "Spider-Man" spin-off

"The Beguiled" arrives only a couple weeks before "Spider-Man: Homecoming," the second reboot of a series that originally co-starred Dunst. Years ago, back during press for one of the "Spider-Mans," Dunst hatched a crazy idea for a spin-off: Mary Jane would get pregnant with Peter Parker's baby, and the whole film would be a dark and unsettling psychological thriller — think "Rosemary's Baby" — about her dread over giving birth to a spider-toddler. It never happened, of course.

"I still think it would be cool to do," Dunst says. "It's such a unique idea; no one's done that with a superhero character — like an independent version. Maybe I'll ask Sam [Raimi, "Spider-Man" director] if he'd be into it. It would be really dark."

objectified at times."

Meanwhile, the female characters are covered head-to-toe in period garb. Coppola made them all take a deep dive in 19th century refinement: sewing classes, knitting classes. They learned dances and songs and did Bible study.

Another rule: No ankles could be shown. At least they had fun with the strict refinements of the 19th century. Craft services always poured their drinks into the same plastic cups you see at keggers.

"You'd see these little girls with red solo cups, so it looked like we all had beers in our hands," Dunst remembers. "We made this little 'Girls Gone Wild' video, where Elle and I were in our outfits and holding these red solo cups. We'd run up to Sofia, then we'd flash our ankles. We're gonna put it out there; I'll Instagram it or something."

Why Suffer With Fibroids?

VIVA-EVE Uterine Fibroid Embolization (UFE) can:

- Treat heavy bleeding, severe cramps, painful intercourse, bloating and more
- Help you avoid major surgery, such as hysterectomy or myomectomy
- Quickly restore harmony to your body

VivaEve's UFE is a minimally invasive, FDA-approved alternative to fibroid surgery, and is covered by most insurance plans.

Our licensed, board-certified doctors are UFE experts. Our caring staff, state-of-the-art outpatient facility, and thoughtful, diligent follow-up measures have won praise from our patients:

"It was like night and day. My stomach feels smaller, my cycle is much lighter and I definitely have more energy. I really liked the VivaEve staff and I am so happy I chose UFE instead of one of the major surgeries."

— Luann, 42

"My doctor recommended VivaEve. She had several patients who did their UFE there and were very pleased with the results... My life doesn't stop during my cycle anymore."

Venom and Spider-Man already tussled in "Spider-Man 3," and they may do it again. MARVEL

Spider-Man, Venom and loving shared universes

Geek Girl in Hollywood

JENNA BUSCH
legionofleia.com

There have been conflicting reports about whether or not Spider-Man will appear in the upcoming Sony spin-off films.

If you're not familiar, Sony has the film rights to Spider-Man, though he's a Marvel comic book character. Marvel and Sony have a deal that allows Spider-Man to be a part of the Avengers on film and to have his first new solo film, "Spider-Man: Homecoming," be part of the MCU. Venom, meanwhile, is exclusively Sony. But recently there's been talk of joining the two — who already fought in "Spider-Man 3," from 2007 — together in a film, something that may be contractually verboten.

To someone who's not in the film industry, all this talk can be confusing. To someone who is, it's still sometimes a bit wonky. So I'm not going to talk about why I want to see Spider-Man in a Venom movie or why it seems silly to make one unless he's going to be. There's no point, and who knows what may change, how many times things will change, or what back-room meetings and deals no one has been privy to. Honestly, I'm just going to talk about why I love shared universes and keep my fingers crossed.

My first shared universe was Anne McCaffrey's novels. When I realized (spoiler alert for books that have been out for decades) the medieval-seeming universe of Pern was part of the Federated Sentient Planets group (set in the future of space travel) that McCaffrey had been writing about for years, I flipped my lid. When I learned that her Crystal Singer books would cross over in a small way with the sentient ships (just look it up), I was blown away. I started those before even comics, so I was awed to learn that different stories could take place in the same universe. Now it seems normal, but back then it was new.

I remember thinking about why it had such an impact on me as a kid. Then I realized: Our entire world is a shared universe. We all live in the same place. We tell the same stories. You know that Noah's Ark story? There are flood myths everywhere. There are gods that cross over between mythologies because we don't live in walled countries (yet). Our lives cross over, and so do our experiences.

You know how you feel when you meet someone who lives right near you, but the meeting happens on the other side of the world? (This just happened to me in New Zealand.) Or when your friend knows someone you know, or you have a similar experience to a friend or a stranger? There is a connection there, and it reminds you that we're all part of something bigger. There is every reason to recognize that in a shared fictional universe. I think it pings the same chords in us.

So, let Spidey show up in Venom. He's part of the universe anyway. And it's all about the fans. We know it. We know he belongs there. Forget deals for a moment and let us connect the universe. Let the Universal monsters exist together. King Kong and Godzilla should totally hang.

NYC Pride Week always brings special ways to show your commitment to sparkle motion — here are some of the best ways to celebrate. EVA KIS

Queens Werq the World Tour

RuPaul and company are stopping by NYC just in time for Pride weekend with their Queens Werq the World Tour. All your favorite queens from “RuPaul’s Drag Race” are coming to wow you with style, grace and some serious face, like Trinity Taylor, Latrice Royale, Alyssa Edwards and newly minted Season 9 stars Aja, Peppermint and Shea Coulee. June 23, 8-11 p.m., 21+, Stage 48, 605 W. 48th St.

MetFridays: Pride

From the front steps to its rooftop bar, The Met is going all out for Pride on June 23’s edition of MetFridays. Groove on the plaza during the Love Saves the Day silent disco with beats by Rich Medina, DJ Spinna and The Twilite Tone (5-8:30 p.m.), take in the museum’s signature nine-minute talks all night on topics like gender fluidity in Southeast Asian sculptures, join a discussion with gay comic book artist and writer Phil Jimenez, join a drop-in drawing class (materials are provided) and more.

Friday, June 23, 5-9 p.m., 1000 Fifth Ave., free with museum admission ($25 suggested)

Girl Pride NYC

Back for a second year after a smash premiere, Siren takes LGBTQ women and their allies out on the water for a Girl Pride NYC all-night party. Watermark Bar on the East River hosts four international and local DJs to spin until 4 a.m. with go-go dancers, emcee Paris Roman of Queens and tons more live entertainment. Saturday, June 24, 9 p.m.-4 a.m., $40 and up, Pier 15, 78 South St., eventbrite.com

Do Pride your way

Instead of just one giant closing night dance party, Pride has expanded to three nights of music-led fun on Pier 26 called Pride Island. Each day will feature a different genre of music — Friday is all about soul with Patti LaBelle and Deborah Cox, Saturday is mellow New Age vibes plus Tegan and Sara, while Sunday brings house and dance DJs. June 23-25, 21+, West Street at North Moore Street, $35+, showclix.com

Masterbeat: Game Show

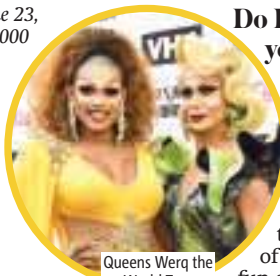

This is the all-night party to burn your sleep schedule for. All four floors of the Hammerstein Ballroom will be heaving with hopeful contestants looking to take part in the Masterbeat: Game Show, a themed “theatrical production” featuring the hottest dancers, laser and light shows, intense beats by Ivan Gomez and Micky Friedman, and, just maybe, you getting very, very lucky. Saturday, June 24, 10 p.m.-6 a.m., 21+, $120+, 311 W. 34th St., gameshow.nyc

The Parade

The main event remains the flood of happy people who turn Fifth Avenue all the colors of the rainbow on Sunday afternoon. Led by grand marshals whose star power lies in their leadership in groups including the ACLU, the 48th annual NYC Pride March will set out with its 80-plus floats and 350 organizations at noon from Fifth Avenue and 36th Street, heading downtown to Christopher and Greenwich streets. For the first time ever, the march will also be broadcast from noon to 3 p.m. on ABC7. Sunday, June 25, noon-5 p.m., nycpride.org

Babadook: Queer Horror Stories

Spend the last night of Pride in the company of the newest (and least likely) gay icon, The Babadook, as he hosts a “most horrifying — and hilarious” night of Queer Horror Stories. You can still sign up to share your own tale of being babashook, or just listen as other brave queer storytellers share their stories of inspiration. It’s going to be a scream, with a karaoke session to follow, because the Babadook likes to get down! Sunday, June 25, 8-11:30 p.m., Tilt BK, 248 McKibbin St.

Ride with me

The Bicycle Film Festival returns for its 17th year of celebrating life on two wheels.

EVA KIS
@thisiskis
eva.kis@metro.us

For running a hyper-specific event like the Bicycle Film Festival, Brendt Barbur doesn't actually have an agenda.

"We're not anti-car," he explains. "We want people to be inspired to ride their bikes."

Now in its 17th year (and grown to 85 cities around the world), the Bicycle Film Festival returns to Manhattan this week with six days of live music, exhibits, a vegetarian edition of the Hester Street Fair (a first for the festival) and, of course, tons of films, including a new program of animated shorts.

This year's headliner is a two-night stint by the band Blonde Redhead and a chamber ensemble performing a live score for 1977's "A Sunday in Hell," considered the greatest cycling film ever.

"It follows the Paris-Rubaix race, Barbur explains. "Americans don't really know about it because Lance [Armstrong] didn't do it, but what we see in this film is an incredible access to the riders, which you wouldn't have today."

The fest spans all aspects of cycling, from amateurs to professionals like BMX racers, with over 50 short and feature-length films from 25 countries. You'll get to ride along with women in developing countries, activists working to bring biking to Charleston, and New York City the day after the 2016 presidential election. All films will be screened at Anthology Film Archives.

Having enough high-quality animated entries to make them part of the festival was a treat for Bar-

Catch "Sunday in Hell," considered the best cycling film ever made, with a live score by Blonde Redhead. PROVIDED

bur. Celebrated animator Lucinda Schreiber curated the selections, which examine how cycling differs in various cities ("Bike Portraits"), a feature about the new king of the Tour de France, Chris Froome ("Yellow") and the Oscar-winning tear-jerker "Father and Daughter."

On Sunday, unwind at the BFF Street Party, a celebration of green living that includes a vegetarian food market, plus a pop-up pump track to show off your moves and bicycle vendors.

All events (except the fair) are individually ticketed, or spring for an all-access pass for $43.

Barbur was inspired to start the festival in an unlikely way. He was hit by a bus while riding his bike on Third Avenue back in 2000 — but the experience made him "want to do something really positive about cycling," he says.

If you go

Enthusiasm is what drives (pedals?) the event — Barbur fields ideas from artists, filmmakers and the general cycling community to shape the programming.

If the festival does have a mission, it's to create a mystique around cycling and further broader goals like sustainable travel.

"Surfing had so much beautiful imagery around it, and so much of its mythology comes from that," says Barbur, whereas cycling remains consigned to a more utilitarian realm.

"I didn't want to get political, but this is something that's incredibly beautiful and so positive in ways beyond [protecting] the environment. People who ride bikes are part of the solution to the way we should be living."

YOUR WEEKEND STARTS NOW

ARTS

Kira Lee: "Cartoons and Characters"

Adult-film-star-turned-artist Kira Lee (aka Dani Daniels) returns to gallery 212 Arts with her newest exhibition, "Cartoons and Characters." Each piece is 1 square foot in size and portrays animated favorites from "Adventure Time," "Looney Tunes" and more. June 22-July 6, 212 Arts, 240 E. Fourth St., Free, 212arts.com

Sistine Chapel

The Oculus at the Westfield World Trade Center is a work of art itself. This weekend, its first official art exhibit arrives: Michelangelo's Sistine Chapel. OK, they didn't exactly drag the masterpiece out of Vatican City, but it's been painstakingly recreated through 34 frescoes so you can take a much closer look you'd even get in Italy. June 23-July 23, 10 a.m.-9 p.m., The Oculus, 33-69 Vesey St., $20, westfield.com

After a hit debut last year, the Summer Winestock returns to the Stone House on Staten Island. With your ticket, you'll enjoy unlimited wine and cheese at the

FESTIVAL

Backlot Arts

It sounds like something you'd overhear in a cafe in Brooklyn: Anything can be art. But the Backlot Arts Festival, presented by KAD this weekend, opens the conversation with a diverse range of hands-on workshops — offering the community the chance to craft everything from pottery and media to books and cocktails — plus performances and exhibitions. There's also live music, walking tours, movie screenings and a closing party. All 30 events over two days are free. June 24-25, 34-12 36th St., Queens, free, kaufmanartsdistrict.org site of the scenic property on Clove Lakes. You can also sip champagne-inspired cocktails, pose for pics in a 1970s-inspired photobooth and enjoy both live music and a DJ. June 22, 6 p.m.-10 p.m., 1150 Clove Road, Staten Island, $59, thestonehousesi.com

COMEDY

Broadway Comedy Night

How well do jokes translate? Who's funnier, Americans or the French? Form your own opinions on the closing night of the French Comedy Festival, which runs June 21-24 at the French Institute Alliance Francaise. Broadway Comedy Night is the only show in the series that's all in English. June 24, 9:30 p.m., FIAC Florence Gould Hall, 55 E. 59th St., $25-$30, frenchcomedy-festival.org

CRUISES & EVENTS

We all love to get away for the weekend during summer, but you know you can't do it every weekend. So, if you want to escape the hustle and bustle and get out of the city without actually leaving, a cruise is the perfect solution.

Don't be fooled into thinking cruises are just for tourists — although they are great to take your out-of-town friends and family! Hornblower's happy hour and party cruises are for locals just like you. If you're tired of the same old after-work bar and those rooftop bars are just a little too pretentious, Alive After Five is just what you need. It's just like a rooftop bar but with an always changing view... What more could you want? Some great music to go along with the amazing views? Hornblower's Alive After Five happy hour cruise has that too.

You can make Alive After Five your regular spot, but it's also great for when you have a low-key celebration, casual birthday drinks, landing a new client... anything. Happy hours can be ordinary but Alive After Five is that bit of EXTRAordinary we all need from time-to-time.

If you're like the city and never sleep, Rock the Yacht! is New York's best party cruise. Are you a best man or maid of honor and you're stressed about the bachelor or bachelorette party plans? Here's your answer.

Until recently, Rock the Yacht! was the place to get your night started... but now it's also the place to party 'til the early hours, with a new later cruise added on Saturdays. Now you can make waves on the dance floor to the break of dawn... well, 2am. Why club when you can cruise? There's nothing like that early-morning air, the incredible view of the Manhattan skyline all lit up and a pumping soundtrack to the city's iconic sights.

But it's not just happy hour and party cruises... The best place for incredible views of the 4th of July fireworks is out on the water and Hornblower has four cruises for the ultimate Independence Day celebrations. Get the family together, make it a day to remember and say happy birthday to the USA with an all-American picnic style buffet and open bar.

Pier 15 is the place to be. Hornblower has everything you need whether it's a relaxing drink with amazing views, a rocking yacht, and coming soon, a day party. We don't want to give away too much but you'll soon be able to brunch it up with beats and unlimited bubbles aboard a Sunday party like no other in New York City. If you love to brunch, you'll love Hornblower's new cruise.... Coming soon. See New York. Be New York with Hornblower.

You can book online at HornblowerNY.com. For private events, email nyeevents@hornblower.com or call (646) 832-3944.

THE MUSEUM OF CAPITALISM

The end of money?

California's new Museum of Capitalism shows how money has eroded our quality of life.

EVA KIS
@thisiskis
eva.kis@metro.us

As the state that drew millions west with the hopes of striking it rich during the Gold Rush, it seems fitting that California is host to the new Museum of Capitalism.

Dedicated to "educating future generations about the ideology, history, and legacy of capitalism," the museum was made possible after several years of planning and fundraising by a group of curators, artists, writers, educators and museum professionals, with input from historians and economists.

More than 80 artists, both international and American, contributed works that explore the rise of capitalism and its social impact on everything from race to the environment to class divisions in the U.S.

Whether it's a penny press commenting on minimum wage, shocking illustrations of just how much more CEOs make than their employees, a somber display of police lights arranged as an American flag as commentary on our increasingly militarized police state, the museum argues that capitalism might actually be the root of all modern evil.

For visitors, the museum aims to be a wake-up call that Americans' lives are run by money far outside the realm of the jobs we hold or the stores we shop at. Its message is that capitalism is wasteful of our time (social media), environmental resources (making everything cheap and disposable, which is more profitable than getting items repaired) and even us (automation displacing workers, the corrupt private prison system).

The museum will continue to seek out new artifacts to expand. Right now it's only going to be around through Aug. 20, but partner venues are being solicited to take the exhibits on the road in some form across the country.

While entry to the Museum of Capitalism is free, don't miss the gift shop where you can buy items like the board game Anti-Monopoly which claims to level the playing field for would-be real estate moguls.

We're still beholden to capitalism, after all.

Tense times for Knicks ahead of draft

MSG's inept basketball team could create a bright future or completely destroy it in the coming hours.

JOE PANTORNO
@JoePantorno
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Weren't things looking OK a couple weeks ago?

Sure, Kristaps Porzingis and Phil Jackson weren't talking, but the New York Knicks had the No. 8 pick, there were rumors swirling that point guard Ricky Rubio might be shipped from the Minnesota Timberwolves and Kentucky's Malik Monk could fall to their No. 8 spot during tonight's NBA draft (7 p.m. ET, ESPN).

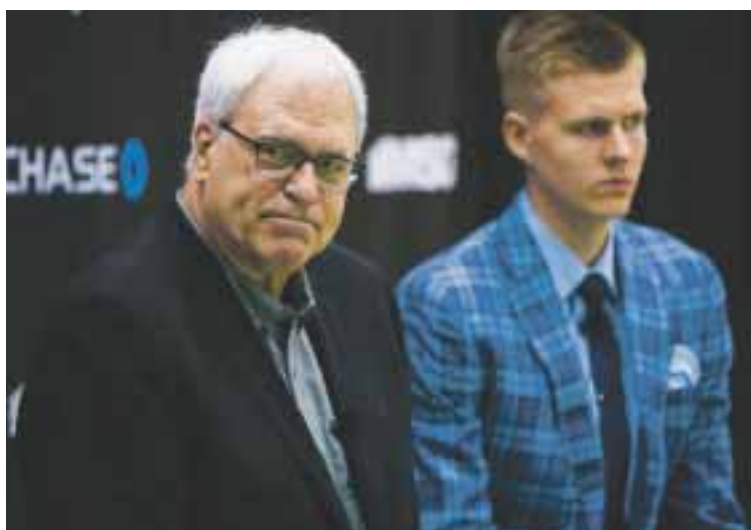

A possible lineup that would have featured Rubio, Monk, Porzingis and Willy Hernangomez? That's a pretty nice start. Then throw in the possible assets gained by trading Carmelo Anthony and the word "playoffs" might not have been far from the lips of many Knicks fans.

But in true Knicks fashion, that looks like it was all too good to be true.

New York broke the NBA world yesterday when it was reported that Jackson was open to trading Porzingis, widely regarded as one of the finest young basketball talents on the planet and the Knicks' future face of the franchise. Adrian Wojnarowski of the Vertical revealed that there was "a frenzy of interest," from teams around the league who were suddenly presented with a slim chance of attaining the 21-year-old adorably referred to as a unicorn.

Porzingis is the only player in NBA history to record at least 2,000

Phil Jackson continues to toy with Knicks fans' emotions as he takes part in trade talks for Kristaps Porzingis. GETTY IMAGES points, 1,000 rebounds, 250 blocks and 100 made 3-point field goals over his first two seasons.

That's pretty remarkable.

Yet Jackson might just let his hubris get in the way of the best thing the Knicks have had in decades and deal Porzingis away.

He even has the gall to think that Arizona product Lauri Markkanen, a player built similarly to Porzingis, could come in immediately as Porzingis' replacement if New York dealt him and took the Finnish prospect at No. 8.

That's asinine.

The madness doesn't end there. Rumors emerged (via ESPN's Ramona Shelburne) that the Knicks are also very high on Kansas forward Josh Jackson, who is bound to be a top-four selection on Thursday night. The problem is, the Knicks would have to give up a star player in order to get up into that top three or four range.

The No. 3 pick belongs to the Boston Celtics while No. 4 is the Phoenix Suns'. The New York Daily News' Stefan Bondy reported that the Celtics have reached out to the Knicks about Porzingis, but Phil Jackson's asking price was rightfully "astronomical."

That likely means that Boston would have to give up their No. 3 pick, a first-rounder next year and an established player like Jae Crowder if not more.

Among other teams, the Philadelphia 76ers have also inquired about a trade.

There is still time for Jackson to find a way to ship Porzingis and the Knicks' future away. Hopefully, for the poorly run franchise and their fans, it runs out on draft night.

WHERE IS THE LOVE FOR BROOK LOPEZ?

@sidrosenberg

Brook Lopez deserves a huge pat on the back from every Nets fan on his way out of Brooklyn.

Arguably the best big man to ever don a Nets jersey, Lopez was shipped to his home state of California on Tuesday evening in a trade with the Los Angeles Lakers for D'Angelo Russell and Timofey Mozgov.

The lifelong Net was drafted in 2008 when the team was still in New Jersey and became the centerpiece of the organization. Though Nets management never quite put the right pieces around Lopez to manufacture a deep playoff run, Lopez was a consummate professional on and off the court for an organization that went through a major overhaul during his tenure.

Four years into the 7-footer from Stanford's NBA career, the franchise that drafted him uprooted the entire organization from the marshes of New Jersey and planted itself into the heart of Brooklyn at the intersection of Flatbush and Atlantic avenues.

It was a momentous change for a franchise looking for its identity since the early 2000s. The Nets needed a face for their franchise and Lopez was it.

Hold on a second — but was he really?

Could this goofy, practical-joking, cartoon loving, behemoth of a man really be the face of an NBA franchise?

Turns out that answer was yes. Lopez stepped into the spotlight and took on the responsibility of being the Nets' prized possession.

Lopez's California-cool charisma kept him grounded over his nine-year career with the Nets. There were a lot of bad players that came through that locker room and I can guarantee you that every single one of them has nothing but good things to say about Brook. The guy played hard night in, night out for teams that absolutely stunk. He never said a peep and carried himself like a professional through and through.

To put Lopez's Nets career in perspective and to help strengthen my argument that he may be the best big man to ever play for the Nets franchise, let's take a look at what he's put up over his career.

Right off the bat this past season, Lopez became the Nets franchise's all-time leading scorer with 10,444 points, just narrowly eclipsing Buck Williams' previous mark of 10,440.

That's right, Lopez scored more points in a Nets uniform than Jason Kidd, Vince Carter, Julius Erving, Derrick Coleman and Richard Jefferson.

He is the team's all-time leader in field goals made, field goals missed, blocked shots and offensive win shares. Brook also made the 2012 NBA All-Star team, and later on in the season would lead the Nets to a playoff appearance.

Now he is heading to the storied franchise that is the Los Angeles Lakers (along with the Nets' 27th pick in tonight's NBA draft in Brooklyn).

Boy, is he in a much better situation now with the Lakers. Brook's hard work and professionalism may have paid off for him big time as he now might have the job of his dreams in a place close to his roots.

Best of luck to you, Brook.

Aries Listen to someone else's suggestions, but don't feel the need to follow them. You must do what works for you if you want to get ahead. Stop second-guessing.

Taurus Look back to get a better feel for what you can achieve in the future. Revive old ideas that were successful in the past and revamp them to fit current trends.

Gemini Emotions will take control and are best monitored before you do or say something that may jeopardize your reputation. Someone is watching your every move.

Cancer Physical transformation and discipline will go hand in hand. Starting a healthy routine will help you shed bad habits and start anew. Strive for personal perfection.

Leo Be careful when it comes to generosity. Don't make donations or lend money or possessions. It's important to read the fine print when negotiating or signing contracts.

Virgo Keep your emotions in check and your mind focused on the people and projects that bring you the most joy. Live in the moment and explore new possibilities.

Libra Help the vulnerable people in your life, but don't feel the need to take charge or fight a battle that isn't yours. Offer advice and support.

Scorpio Travel to a destination that will inspire you to expand your knowledge and work hard in pursuit of your goals. Mix business with pleasure for stellar results.

Sagittarius A problem will surface if you or your partner is vague or deceptive regarding the facts. Proceed with caution and protect your assets.

Capricorn You'll be given false information by someone with savvy business experience. Don't make a commitment until you get the advice of an expert. Avoid overspending.

Aquarius Participate in events that will expand your mind, strengthen friendships and boost your ability to advance. Listen carefully to what's being offered you.

Pisces An emotional setback will occur if you make assumptions. Focus on the positive aspects of whatever situation you face and take a wait-and-see attitude. EUGENIA LAST
